A big arch of trailing roses, Sixty years old, which has been standing since the opening

A big arch of "François Juranville," which has been standing in the garden for about 60 years since the opening. We transplanted it to its current position in 1999 when we renewed the garden, and the rose blossoms have been growing larger in number, year by year. They spread a fascinating fragrance resembling tea.

Anniversary Garden to Commemorate Seizo Suzuki, our first breeder

The late Seizo Suzuki, the first breeder of our company, won many awards at international competitions of new rose breeds, and is known as "Mr. Rose" across the world. This memorial garden is a 50% reduced replica of a house he designed for an individual client in 1949.
